

2023 February Plant Sale

Following a wet and cooler than normal January, the plant sales in February looked to be a tough "sell." The last day of January provided more cold and rainy conditions. The Plant Sales crew opened up shop anyway. It was a great decision as they sold over $500 worth that day. The weather by Thursday was considerably improved and the sales went over $700. Finally, for the first time in too long, Saturday was sunny and almost reached "short-wearing" conditions. It appears that the better weather was on many people's minds because the public flow into the February 4 Plant Sale was steady all morning. The nearly $3000 taken in that day pushed the week's total well over $4000.
